

WADE LOCKS DOOR THEN TURNS ON GAS

Manager of Bowling Alley Found Almost Dead.

POLICEMAN AIDS IN RESCUE

Summoned by Fellow-boarder of Gustave Wade, Policeman Cronie Smashes in Door and Applies Heroic Remedies—Victim Taken to Hospital, and May Recover.

Policeman J. W. Cronie, of the First precinct, yesterday saved the life of Gustave Wade, forty years old, who attempted suicide by inhaling illuminating gas.

Wade is manager of the Palace bowling alleys at 914 E street northwest, and is well known in Washington, especially among the sporting fraternity. He boards at 715 Ninth street northwest. It was in his room at the boarding house that Wade attempted to end his life.

About 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon J.
A. Stewart, an official in the War Department, who occupies the room adjoining that of Wade, approached Policeman Cronie at Ninth and G streets northwest, saying, "A man just committed suicide up the street." Cronie and Stewart ran to the house and up the steps to the second floor.

The atmosphere in the hall was charged with the odor of gas, and a group of men and women boarders stood before a locked door in the hallway, eagerly waiting the arrival of a policeman. "He's in that room," some one said, and Cronie took the key from the door. The lock gave way with a crash, Cronie stumbled forward into the darkened room almost overcome.

Was Lying on the Floor.
Wade, clad only in a nightgown, was huddled on the floor against the door of a closet. Gas flowed from an open jet from which the tip had been taken. Cronie first shut off the gas. Then he threw aside the lowered window shade and threw up the sash. Lifting the inanimate body, Cronie carried Wade to the open window. The policeman placed the body so the head was outside of the window, the back resting on the sill and the feet on the floor.

A pitcher of lead water was handed him, and he forced some between the lips.
He ordered a hurry call sent to Emergency Hospital, and while awaiting the arrival of the ambulance continued his efforts to resuscitate Wade.

The would-be suicide showed no sign of life. He was unconscious, and letters could not feel either heart or pulse beat.
For ten minutes the policeman labored over the unconscious man, and then a physician arrived. He made a cursory examination of the patient, and ordered him removed to the ambulance. While Wade was being carried downstairs the physician said to Cronie, "I believe you saved him."

Consciousness Regained.
While a hurry run was being made to the hospital the physician worked over Wade, who did not regain consciousness until more than an hour after he was carried to the hospital. "It was a close shave," said the physician, after Wade opened his eyes and looked around.

It is believed Wade recovered through his condition is critical. He was too weak to talk of the case, and the physician did not trouble him to ask his name or address, obtaining this information from another source. According to the police, Wade's mother and sister live in Alexandria. They had not been located at a late hour. It is said Wade is married.
His wife is said to live in a Northern city, but the report was not confirmed.
Wade wrote no notes or letters explaining his act. The cause for his wish to die was not learned by the police, and friends of the dependent man refuse to talk of the case. Wade left the boarding-house about 2 o'clock in the morning and did not return until 2 o'clock in the afternoon. He was heard as he ascended the steps and went in his room. It was more than three hours later that the landlord, walking through the hall, detected the odor of gas and called to the boarders, who found the gas was coming from Wade's room, and then summoned a policeman.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

at scattered points in the Middle and South Atlantic States and the extreme Southwest.
The temperature will be lower Monday in the Eastern and Southern States, except on the immediate Gulf coast. In the Lake region, the Upper Mississippi Valley, and the Plains States the temperature will rise during the next forty-eight hours.
The winds along the New England coast will be light to moderate north and northwest; on the Middle Atlantic coast light to moderate northerly; on the South Atlantic and Gulf coasts moderate northeast and east, except variable on the Florida coast; on the West Gulf coast moderate easterly; on the Lower Lakes moderate and easterly; on the Upper Lakes moderate variable, except easterly on Superior.
Steamers departing Monday for European ports will have moderate northerly winds and generally fair weather to the Grand Banks.

WILL HOLD CONFERENCE.

Taft Commission Meets in New York City To-day.

The conference designated by President Taft to formulate a plan for the reorganization of the government departments which deal with corporations, in view of the fact that the latter may be more systematically supervised, will hold its first meeting this morning in the rooms of the New York Bar Association, in Forty-second street, New York City.

Those attending the conference will be Attorney General Wickersham, Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel, Interstate Commerce Commissioners Knapp and Prouty, and Solicitor General Eilers.
The conference will be held behind closed doors.

These conferences were appointed last spring by President Taft.

President Taft suggested to the conference that as a guide they consult his speech of acceptance in Cincinnati in July, 1908, in this speech the President advocated a change in the Interstate commerce act, whereby the commission would be relieved of certain executive and administrative duties.

GERMAN SOCIETY HONORS HOUSEWIFE

Erection of Monument to Creator of the Home Favored.

JACOB XANDER ENTERTAINS

Arlon Singing Society of Jersey City Will Visit Washington Next Sunday—John Waldman Declines to Run Again for Presidency of Saen-gerbund—"German Day" Plans.

The erection of a monument in honor of the "Housewife" was advocated yesterday by Louis P. Shoemaker, president of the Brightwood Citizens' Association, at the assembly of a large number of Germans of this city, who were the guests of Jacob Xander, at his residence in Brightwood avenue, yesterday afternoon, the occasion being his birthday anniversary.

Mr. Shoemaker dwelt on the fact that soldiers, sailors, statesmen, painters, poets, and musicians, horses, dogs, and birds, and other members of the animal kingdom had been immortalized, but that the most prominent person of all, the creator and founder of the home and the family hearth—the housewife—had been neglected entirely. Mr. Shoemaker advocated a movement to erect a monument in this city in honor of the housewife.

This proposition was enthusiastically supported by those present, who will bring the matter up for discussion at the meetings of their respective organizations.

Adolph Levy, one of the most prominent members of the Saengerbund, spoke in favor of the project, and suggested that the monument be of such dimensions and workmanship as to redound to the credit of those who were instrumental in its erection. George W. Spier spoke eloquently on culture and civilization, and denounced Puritanism and the tendency to deprive the American people of their personal liberty.

The Saengerbund sang a number of selections, and refreshments were served.

Will Visit Washington.
The Arlon Singing Society of Jersey City has notified the Saengerbund of its intention to visit Washington next Sunday, and to make Saengerbund Hall its headquarters while sojourning in this city. There will be a kommers at the hall following the annual election of officers. In this connection it can be said with certainty that John Waldman, who has served as president of the Saengerbund for many years, positively declines to run again, as stated by him through another source. The cause for his wish
talk of the case. Wade left the board-
the odor of gas and called to the board-
man.

The annual election of officers of the Arlon Gesang Verein will take place on Sunday evening at the clubhouse, and present sentiment points to the re-election of F. A. Rocker as president of the society.

The Arlon at its last monthly meeting decided to celebrate German Day on October 6 by making a pilgrimage to Mount Vernon, where it is their intention to sing a number of songs at the grave of George Washington, place a wreath on the grave, and listen to a brief address.
The other singing societies will be invited to participate in this celebration, which is to be an annual affair.

Trip to Baltimore.
The board of directors of the Arlon and a number of other prominent Germans of this city will make a trip to Baltimore this afternoon to visit the historical points of interest of that city, and also to pay a call to the various German societies of the Monumental City.

A club license having been granted to the Columbia Turnverein, the club house is undergoing a complete overhauling and alterations are being made to suit the purposes of the organization. The German language classes and the gymnastic classes will open on September 15, and judging from the number of applications, the classes this year will be larger than ever.

The Germania Maennerchor entertained its members and friends at an excursion down the river yesterday. Games, songs, and amusements for young and old were enjoyed by all until a late hour.

MRS. G. F. ORMSBY LEAVES THE CITY

Departure Follows News of Suit Filed by Husband.

ABDUCTION CASE RECALLED

Until Learning of Her Husband's Charge of Conspiracy Against a Washington Judge, Mrs. Ormsby Was Living with Relatives in the City—Has Disappeared with Child.

Following the report of her husband's impending suit against a local judge and a court official on the charge of conspiring to deprive him of his child, Mrs.
George F. Ormsby has left Washington.
Her relatives here decline to tell where she is located. She left the city with her son last Saturday night, four hours after the announcement of her husband's suit had reached here, and is now supposedly at her former home at New Aurora, Va.

Her sister, Mrs. E. L. Low, with whom she has been living at 1317 Riggs street until recently, characterized the suit brought by her former brother-in-law as an absurd attempt to "make more trouble." None of the local court officials, she said, was in any way connected with the abduction of the child by the husband a little more than a year ago. Since the time Mrs. Ormsby was granted her divorce and the custody of her child, Mrs. Low asserted, the local courts have not interfered with either the divorced husband of Mrs. Ormsby.
"It is reasonable to suppose," she said, "that Mr. Ormsby is using this method to frighten his former wife into giving him their child. In view of the fact that proceedings against Mr. Ormsby were dropped following his unsuccessful attempt to abduct his son, it would seem that his action for conspiracy is rather without foundation. I do not believe he intends to push the case."

Can Prosecute Husband.

Other relatives of Mrs. Ormsby, living in southwest Washington, assert that she still maintains the whip hand, inasmuch as she is not without the right to prosecute her husband for the abduction.
They believe that if the action now pending against the local judge is ultimately directed at her, she will take steps to have her husband rearrested, and will push the case formerly brought against him.

With the reopening of the old case by the husband, two facts have come to light. One is the changing of residence by the wife following the recovery of her child last July, and the other is the evident belief of the husband that the child taken from him at the time of his divorce can be regained.

Mrs. Ormsby, it was generally supposed, was living in New Aurora, the place she gave as her domicile when she got her divorce. Last fall, when Mrs. Low left her home, at 622 street southwest, Mrs.
Ormsby moved to a house in Virginia, and since then has been at the new home on Riggs street. Whether this is a violation of the decree of the court, which provided that she remain at New Aurora with her child, is not definitely known.
Mrs. Low declares that it is not.

The husband has not been in Washington since he took the child to Boston and remained in hiding a week before being arrested. It had been supposed that he had long since given up hope of recovering his son, and had left for the West.
The fact that Mrs. Ormsby left town with her boy immediately upon receipt of the news of her husband's new abduction would suggest that she fears more trouble.

Met in Ohio.
Ormsby and his wife met in Ohio in 1903, when she was a schoolgirl. They fell in love, and Ormsby, after obtaining a position in the Department of the Interior, persuading the girl to elope to Washington with him. Shortly after their arrival here, Ormsby, his wife says, began to ill-treat her. The domestic in-felicity which threatened to disrupt their home was staved off by the birth of their son.

This child seems to have been the only bond of affection between husband and wife. When Mrs. Ormsby sued for a divorce, her husband had it stipulated that he be allowed to see his boy at frequent intervals.

One night in July, 1908, the husband called for his son, and announced to his former wife that he was going to take him car riding. He carried the boy to Boston with him, and after eluding the police for two weeks was apprehended and arrested. Ormsby went to Boston for her child, but did not prosecute her husband. It was subsequently rumored that Ormsby had agreed not to attempt any further interference, and had left for the West.

Her friends say that Mrs. Ormsby has always felt more or less apprehension about her child. Nothing can convince her that Ormsby will not make another effort to steal the boy. She has been reading him since her return from Boston, and it is said that her resolve to live with relatives was occasioned by her fear of another abduction.

PREACHES OF FAITH.

Rev. John C. Hill, of Ohio, Occupies
New York Avenue Pulpit.

Rev. John Clark Hill, of the First Presbyterian Church, of Springfield, Ohio, preached yesterday morning at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church.
In the absence of the regular pastor, Rev.
Dr. Wallace Radcliffe, "Faith" was the subject.

"Faith is the Rock of Ages of all religion," said Rev. Dr. Hill, "and no amount of modern blasting can shiver it.
Faith is regarded by some as superstition, because it cannot be measured or weighed as are the things of real life, but there cannot be any true conversion without it. The lack of faith is the lack of religion."

Speaking of modern preachers, who fail to convince, he said it was because they have tried to convert others when they themselves did not have faith.

"Solid faith gives substance to things hoped for," he said, in conclusion. "Faith sees beyond the present. The lack of faith is not the true worship of God."

Will Announce a Deficit.

The Post-office Department has announced another enormous deficit for the year which ended June 30. According to figures now being compiled, this deficit may reach the amount of the deficit for the year which ended June 30, 1908, when it was $18,378,220.74. The appropriations for the fiscal year which closed June 30 were $229,890,892 to run the postal service, and Mr. Meyer, the then Postmaster General, in announcing the deficit a year ago estimated that the sum of the deficit which is to be announced in a few days at the department would again be more than $18,000,000.

MAY ERECT PLANT IN TEXAS.

Schwab Said to Have Options on Ore Land.

Port Arthur, Tex., Aug. 28.—It is reported that Charles M. Schwab, who last week made an investigation of the iron ore resources of East Texas, has obtained options on extensive tracts of ore land in Rusk and Cherokee counties, and that he will erect a large iron and steel mill at Port Arthur.

John W. Gates has been working for some time on the proposition to establish a steel plant here.

NEW AERONAUT IN FIELD.

Biplane Equipped with Automatic Wing Arrangement Flies To-day.

Red Bank, N. J., Aug. 28.—Edward Meyer, a local inventor, has joined the ranks of the aeronauts, and to-morrow expects to attempt a flight in a biplane which he has just completed. The planes are each thirty feet long and nine feet wide. The propeller and rudder are located about fifteen feet from the body of the craft. Bamboo and thin pieces of spruce form the framework, and the canvases in the planes is of khaki. Power is to be furnished by a bicycle motor.

Mr. Meyer has lots of confidence in his airship. One of its unique features is an automatic wing arrangement calculated to keep it on an even keel. Should the ship take a notion to list to starboard, the port wing is supposed to get busy and restore the machine to a natural position.

Despite the confidence that Meyer has in his biplane, he will give it a trial before becoming a passenger. It will be placed on a framework provided with bicycle wheels and towed behind an auto.
When a certain speed is attained Meyer will throw the ship off from its carrier into the air. If the trial is a success, the inventor will then take a sail.

ACCOMPANIED DR. WU

Chinese Slave Girl in a Diplomat's Entourage.

PROBE BY FEDERAL AGENTS

Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children Establishes Facts Regarding Twelve-year-old Ngou Fung, Involving the Embassy and Ung Wah, Who Has Restaurant in City.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, which has been investigating the case of a young Chinese slave girl, Ngou Fung, has obtained positive information she was brought into this country a year and a half ago with the entourage of the Chinese legation when Dr. Wu Ting-fang returned to take up his place a second time as diplomatic representative of the Chinese Empire.

Additional local color is given to the investigation from the fact that it seriously involves Ung Wah, proprietor of a Chinese restaurant here and well known in Washington. Ung Wah admits that the girl came here as a member of the household of Minister Wu, but declares she is his daughter, and that he left her in China when he departed several years ago.

The society, which has conducted such a searching inquiry into the case, has established the fact that Ung Wah had previously failed in an attempt to obtain entry for the girl as his daughter.

Held on Alleged Father.

The society is now withholding Ngou Fung from her alleged father by adoption, Chin Hung, of 34 Most street, New York, on charges that she was sold as a slave by her grandmother in China and came into Chin Hung's possession after a series of sales which proved extremely profitable to those concerned in the transaction. The society has had assistance in its investigations by Federal agents and its own representatives both on the Pacific Coast and in China.

It appears that on the list of Minister Wu's household furnished the Federal authorities the girl was entered as a student, and that upon her arrival in Washington she was not taken to the legation, but hurried to Ung Wah's restaurant.

Neou Fung has told the society's agents that on the steamship which brought the Chinese Minister and his suite to San Francisco she was not admitted to the society of the students who accompanied the minister, but was kept with the servants of the party.

Very recent attempts were made to induce Ung Wah to permit the education of his alleged daughter she disappeared from his Washington home. When she was found in the custody of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and under her own pretense of being returned to Chin Hung, he was denied her delivery to him. Chin Hung said he had adopted her by private arrangement with Ung Wah.

Sold for $80.

Reports of Federal departments to which the society has had access state that Ngou Fung was sold in China for $10 (Mexican), or $80 gold, and that Ung Wah, in Washington, sold her to Chin Hung, of New York, for $80.

That any explanation will be asked of Dr. Wu by the State Department, as the result of discoveries made by the Federal agencies and utilized by the New York society, is unlikely. The protection of diplomatic courtesy is thrown over all the acts of a representative of a foreign government.

The society in presenting its case to Judge Wiley, who has the information obtained, but it must not look to any Federal official for confirmation. This will perhaps embarrass the society in contesting the claim of Chin Hung to the custody of Ngou Fung, but its own agencies have discovered sufficient evidence, it is believed, to prevent the girl's return to Chinatown.

Missionary Interested.
William H. Baker, a clerk in the Treasury Department, and his wife, Mrs.
Able Baker, who are active in a mission for teaching Chinese children in Washington, took an interest in Ngou Fung from the time of her arrival in Ung Wah's home there early in March, 1908.

Ung Wah is forty years old, and then had his wife, about nineteen years old, with him. The wife, who was well known to the Bakers, went to the girl and said:
"Now there is something strange. I am nineteen and I have a girl twelve years old. My husband has given her to me, saying she is the daughter of his first wife, who died in China."

Mrs. Ung Wah did not relish the appearance of Ngou Fung, and soon disappeared, having returned to China, according to her husband's statements. The Bakers offered to find an American home for the girl and have her educated, or take her into their own home.

"Ung Wah became angry at this," Mr.
Baker said, "and told us that if any one tried to educate his daughter he was going to send her to the Chinese Legation, where she could learn to be a cook, and we could not get to her."

SQUIRRELS ROUTED BY SWARMING BEES

Unusual Performance Occurs in Lincoln Park.

INDUSTRY STARTED IN TREES

Boxes Built by District Unceasingly Inhabited by Swarms of Bees, Which Start Work with Full Supply of Hands—Indignation Meeting by Ousted Tenants Probable.

The squirrels at Lincoln Park have found a nut that is too hard to crack. It is in the shape of two swarms of bees, which, emigrating probably from across the Eastern Branch, have settled on two large oak trees in the eastern section of the park in houses built for the squirrels.

The bees have ousted the little animals from their government-built homes in the trees. In fact, the squirrels have been forced to build new houses of twigs and leaves. The bees in the meantime have disregarded hints that they are intruders, and, following out their innate desire to be rich, have stored up what Policeman Machausen estimates to be at least 100 pounds of honey. The boxes which the squirrels formerly occupied are now two feet high, two feet wide, and four feet long, and from the swarms of bees that are continually around them they seem to be a general storehouse for all the bees in that section of the country.
